Occo

Occo

222 range, design: jehs+laub

When furnishing contemporary workspaces, one of the biggest challenges is to ensure that the design of the different areas varies but that a common theme prevails throughout. Occo is more than equal to the task due to the precise shape of its seat shells and striking open sections in the backrests. These not only give the chair an airy, light appearance and outstanding comfort, but lend all members of the family a distinctive look.

Two seat shell shapes in six colors and four upholstered types combined with four choices of frame result in 192 different chairs. The range is complemented by bar stools in six colors, two upholstered types and two frames in two heights as well as matching tables. As a result, Occo is an enormously versatile “chair kit” that allows a whole host of design options for furnishing cafés and bistros, to seminar and multipurpose spaces, to meeting areas and conference rooms.

Models with color-matched, coated, five-star bases on casters give the chairs a consistent look and guarantee that they're easy to maneuver in meeting spaces.

A particularly practical touch is that the types with an upholstered option come with non-slip felt pads, making the chairs easy to clean and more comfortable at the same time.

The models with large, enveloping seat shells at the sides provide exceptional, sprung comfort whatever the frame or type of upholstery chosen.

The four-leg chair frame made of solid oak and the matching table create settings with a home-like appeal for people who want to hold meetings and eat together.

In detail

In the model with a bright chrome-plated, four-leg base frame, Occo becomes a multipurpose chair where up to eight can be stacked in the version with upholstery and up to ten in the version without upholstery. If the goal is to position a maximum number of chairs at tables or in rows, we recommend the Occo SC (side-chair) range of models. The shell comes without armrests, making its design more slimline, so users can adopt a range of different postures. Similarly to all the other models, both multipurpose types are available without upholstery, with a felt pad placed on them, with seat cushioning or with seat and back cushioning.

The bar stools are available in seating heights of 65 cm (25 $\frac{5}{8}$ "") and 75 cm (29 $\frac{1}{4}$ ""). The seat shell's open section reflects the chairs' characteristic design so that all of them coordinate with one another perfectly. Optionally not upholstered, with a felt pad or with cushioning, they invite people to take a seat and are easy to get hold of. A tubular metal skid base, coated in the seat shell, with a footrest at the front and a four-leg frame made of solid oak with a foot ring all the way round open up all sorts of design options. If the skid base is bright chrome plated, up to eight bar stools can be stacked on top of one another.

The Occo chairs, tables and bar stools form a group with an unmistakable family resemblance for a variety of seamless solutions.

The bar stools stand apart for the organic form of the seat shells, which convey a feeling of assurance and comfort.

Due to its distinctive style and fluid lines, Occo can easily be combined with other items of furniture, such as the Insit seating unit.
